

I've heard a lot of people like my boss say that math is useless, I strongly disagree, I think math is everything, we wouldn't have anything we have currently without math, anything you can think of involves math. But math isn't all about crunching numbers, learning math is also all about critical thinking. Math is a very important thing to learn because eventually, everyone is going to have to worry about finance, like calculating mortgages, or saving up money for a big trip. People that don't have good math skills are usually the kind of people living paycheck to paycheck because they don't know how to manage their money, because they don't know how to. They never cared to receive the proper education to live well in their standards. Math is one of the most important subject in school and I think people take math for granted, math is very underestimated.
